2017 SEASON OUTLOOK

After seven seasons as defensive coordinator, Patrick Daberkow now takes over the top job at his alma mater. The 2006 graduate oversaw several elite defenses, including units in 2013 and 2015 that both finished inside the top five nationally in total defense. Daberkow has his elevator speech memorized. Accountability. Toughness. Authenticity. Those are the characteristics Daberkow has stressed since being named head coach in December.

Daberkow helped rebuild the program while serving on previous head coach Vance Winter's staff. Winter saved his best for last, guiding the Bulldogs to a 7-3 mark and a No. 19 final national ranking in 2016. Concordia has been trending upward in recent years, featuring stars such as Trey Barnes, Bryce Collins, Jared Garcia, Michael Hedlund, Von Thomas and Darnell Woods, to name a few. Many of the big names on defense have been lost to graduation, but Daberkow finds the program in good hands heading into the fall.

Beyond Daberkow, the coaching staff includes plenty of familiar faces, although the roles have been altered. Daberkow promoted Corby Osten, another Concordia alum, to defensive coordinator and elevated former graduate assistant Wes Coomes to special teams coordinator. Daberkow then went outside the program to hire offensive coordinator Thomas Byrd, a four-year starter on the offensive line for head coach Chris Petersen at Boise State. Another addition to the staff is Von Thomas, a 2015 Concordia grad who shares the school record for most career touchdown passes.

Offensively, Concordia possesses an experienced offensive line and the explosive and record-breaking Jared Garcia on the outside. The return of Seth Fitzke (missed 2016 with a torn ACL) gives Byrd a well-rounded tight end to work with. On the other side of the ball, corners D'Mauria Martin and Tarence Roby are the headliners. Both have earned first team All-GPAC accolades.

Daberkow's fall practice objectives

"We need to establish the kind of toughness that we need to get through our schedule. We have a really tough schedule, but we also have a really tough team. We made great strides during the off-season as far as developing that toughness and that mindset. I believe that we have all the talent that we need. We need to make sure our mindset's right and we're jelling as a unit. The focus for fall camp is to get everyone on the same page and just playing tough."

Jared Garcia on the new offense

The offense from first look seemed very complicated. There are so many pieces that make up the puzzle. A positive that comes from this is that our offense is not very predictable. I feel like once all of those moving parts come together we will be a dominant offense.

Quarterbacks

Both senior TJ Austin and junior Riley Wiltfong have considerable experience. Wiltfong was Concordia's leading passer last year, completing 87-of-183 passes (.475) for 1,136 yards and 12 touchdowns to go against six interceptions. Daberkow says there will be an open competition with strong-armed junior Andrew Perea also in the mix. A starter is yet to be announced.

Running Backs

The Bulldogs have said goodbye to the program's second all-time leading rusher Bryce Collins, who piled up 3,547 yards and 35 touchdowns on the ground over his four seasons in Seward. The most experienced returner will be Doniphan, Neb., native Jordan Slough, who has 169 career rushing yards. Newcomers will have an opportunity to make an impact. The team's two leading returning rushers are Austin (327) and Wiltfong (239), two mobile quarterbacks. Fullback Erik Small is regarded as one of the best players in the program. His biggest contributions come from his ability as a blocker.

Receivers

Jared Garcia will have a chance to claim every major school receiving record during his senior season. The two-time first team All-GPAC selection has caught 140 passes for 2,188 yards and 29 touchdowns during his first three years as a Bulldog. Trae Owens will depart, but Concordia brings back the likes of Vincent Beasley (seven catches, 61 yards) and Kiyoshi Brey (13 catches, 143 yards, two touchdowns). Byrd would love to see a reliable No. 2 option develop behind Garcia.

Tight Ends

This group will receive a major boost with the return to health of Seth Fitzke, a 2015 first team All-GPAC performer who sat out the entire 2016 campaign. Fitzke is an excellent blocker and pass catcher with 31 career grabs for 263 yards and four touchdowns. Concordia will try to develop depth behind him. The starter at this spot in 2016, Cameron Christiansen, has graduated.

Offensive Line

The Bulldogs want to improve upon their 2016 yards per carry average of 4.0. It starts up front. The alignment has not been finalized, but last year's right side of guard Matthew Romero (guard) and Grady Kock (tackle) are back in the fold after earning honorable mention All-GPAC accolades in 2016. Daberkow has raved about the offseason work of center Austin Reese. Concordia also will get a fifth year from tackle Hallick Lehmann, who was sidelined by injury for almost the entire 2016 season. The 6-foot-4 Lehmann has made

Erik Small

Defensive Line

This position group has the biggest question marks of any. Starters Trey Barnes, Ron Jackson and Nolan Schroeder have all exhausted their eligibility. It's almost a guarantee that new faces will be part of the equation. It will difficult to replace the production of Barnes, who totaled nine sacks and 22 tackles for loss as a senior.

Linebackers

The lone returning starter is junior Kordell Glause, who registered 44 tackles (six for loss) this past fall. Down the stretch in 2016, Daberkow employed three senior linebackers in his 3-4 defensive alignment. That group was headlined by first team All-GPAC tackling machine Michael Hedlund, who topped the conference with 107 stops. This is another unit with starting positions up for grabs.

Defensive Backs

Daberkow believes he has two potential All-America candidates in the defensive backfield with holdovers D'Mauria Martin and Tarence Roby, two of the top corners in the GPAC. It's possible Martin could be moved around to accommodate Sebastian Garces at one of the corner spots. This unit loses both 2016 starting safeties, but is by far the most experienced grouping on defense.

Specialists

Transfer Brendan Cremin could take over the place kicking duties on a full-time capacity after splitting the role with Jose Garcia in 2016. Cremin went 3-for-5 with a long of 42 on field goals in his first year as a Bulldog. Concordia will have to replace Barnes (40.7 average), who was the GPAC's top punter last season. In the return game, Garcia (punt returner) and Roby (kick returner) provide game-changing ability. Roby averaged 27.7 yards per return while taking one kick 91 yards for a touchdown in 2016.

QUOTABLE

"I met so many awesome people as a student at Concordia. I had such a good experience. The people here shaped me in ways that have really defined me. I met my wife here. Most of my groomsmen were guys I played football with at Concordia. I keep in touch with a lot of friends I met here."

QUICK HITTERS

- Coordinated the 2013 and 2015 defenses to top five national finishes in terms of total defense
- Coached All-Americans Darnell Woods (2013) and Trey Barnes (2015/2016)
- Served as a team captain on the 2006 Concordia football team
- 2003 Team Defensive Newcomer of the Year

HEAD COACH PATRICK DABERKOW*Q&A WITH COACH DABERKOW*What have you enjoyed about living in Seward?

I love the neighbors that we have. I have neighbors that insist on me borrowing tools out of their garage. I love the people.

What's life like managing a family of five and now becoming a head coach for the first time?

I'm so incredibly blessed. I have three very healthy kids and a wife who is athletically-minded. We have the same sense of humor. I'm trying to manage the blessings that I have. It's hard to turn this profession off. People need things from you at different hours of the day. When I get home I need to leave the cell phone in the truck when I'm eating dinner. The work never stops. There's always something you can do to get an advantage. I'm learning so much every day on how to be a head football coach. It's a blast. I'm loving it.

What do you like to do when you have free time?

Me and my daughters are getting really good at catching frogs and toads. That's been a pastime this summer. Emly likes to take the kids to the zoo in Lincoln. We like to go around to state parks in the area and do some exploring. The kids really enjoy that.

Who are some of your biggest influences in the coaching profession?

(Concordia baseball coach) Ryan Dupic is one of the people I've learned the most from as far as introducing me to different books and coaching material that's helped me be a better coach. I can't say enough about how much I've learned from him. And when we get together and sit down as coaches in our office we're always bouncing ideas off of each other. I'm really big on having a strong learning environment. Coach (Thomas) Byrd said it feels like I'm giving him homework. We're reading the same book this summer. Overall, my biggest influence in coaching has been my dad.

What was that like playing with your younger brother Dayton at Concordia?

I was a defensive back and he was a wide receiver. It was a matchup we were pretty well used to. If we got in a fist fight I think I'd take him, but if we needed to go up for a jump ball in the back of the end zone I'd be in trouble. I stopped playing him in pick-up basketball. We used to play one-on-one all the time and then he started beating the snot out of me.

Which professional teams did you grow up rooting for?

Just like every kid in Nebraska, I grew up a Husker fan. Then I came to Concordia and started playing football here and I haven't cared what they've done since. I'm a sports junkie. I follow coaches more than I follow teams. I love the Spurs organization. I love the Patriots organization. They have cultures that are so strong. I've never been a Major League Baseball fan, but you have to respect what Theo Epstein has done. I loved Brett Favre.

THOMAS BYRD • Offensive Coordinator

Hometown: San Pablo, California

Alma Mater: Boise State University

Years at Concordia: 1st

- Officially announced as Concordia's offensive coordinator on January 23, 2017. Bryd also serves as the position coach for the offensive line and as an instructor within the health and human performance department.
- Most recently spent two seasons as the offensive line coach at NCAA Division II New Mexico Highlands University in Las Vegas, New Mexico. His journey has also included coaching stops at his alma mater, Boise State University, in addition to Arkansas State University and Contra Costa College.
- Started at center for four seasons at Boise State, playing for head coach Chris Petersen. Byrd helped the Broncos to a win over TCU in the 2010 Fiesta Bowl. A first team all-conference performer, Bryd received recognition on the Rimington Trophy (top center in NCAA Division I FBS) and Rotary Lombardi Award (best lineman or linebacker in NCAA Division I FBS) watch lists in 2011. He snapped footballs for quarterback Kellen Moore, a Heisman finalist in 2010.

CORBY OSTEN • Defensive Coordinator

Hometown: Columbus, Nebraska

Alma Mater: Concordia University, Nebraska

Years at Concordia: 9

- Osten was promoted to defensive coordinator after previously serving as special teams coach and defensive line coach. He will continue to work with the defensive line.
- Osten oversaw successful special teams units that produced first team all-conference kickers Kenny Zoeller and Adam Meirose, and electrifying return men such as Derek Blessing, who owns the school record for punt return touchdowns in a season (3).
- Osten played at Concordia from 1999-2003 and was a member of the 2001 GPAC co-championship team. He earned his bachelor's degree in secondary education with endorsements in theology and physical education.
- Has coached recent defensive line stalwarts Trey Barnes (two-time All-American), Dylan Heithoff (1st team all-GPAC) and Kyle Rakow (2nd team all-GPAC).
- Before returning to Concordia, Osten served as defensive coordinator at Lutheran South Academy in Houston, Texas, from 2004 to 2007. He also held the same role at Lincoln Lutheran High School in 2008.

WES COOMES • Special Teams Coordinator

Hometown: Phillipsburg, Kansas

Alma Mater: Ottawa University

Years at Concordia: 2

- Coomes was elevated to a full-time coaching role after two seasons as a graduate assistant coach on Vance Winter's staff. In his new role, Coomes also serves as defensive backs coach and head junior varsity coach.
- Graduated from Ottawa with a degree in sports administration. Coomes twice earned all-conference recognition while leading the Braves to two NAIA playoff appearances.
- In two seasons at Ottawa, Coomes recorded 134 tackles, 13 tackles for loss, nine pass breakups, three sacks and two interceptions.
- Coached defensive back units the last two years that ranked third and 21st, respectively, in pass defense. Coomes has worked with all-conference defensive backs Le'Dontrae Gooden, D'Mauria Martin and Tarence Roby.

BACK FROM KNEE INJURY, FITZKE BOOSTS NEW OFFENSE

By Jake Knabel, Director of Athletic Communications

When Seth Fitzke blew out his ACL and his meniscus while reach blocking during a practice in the spring of 2016, it could have meant the end. His senior football season loomed just four months into the future.

The Seward High School product never did return to the field, deciding that graduation could wait a bit longer. He took a cue from Billy Madison ... "Stay here. Stay as long as you can."

"I wasn't sure (if I was done playing)," Fitzke said. "There were a lot of unknowns about whether I could push it hard enough and possibly catch some of that upcoming season or if I would end up graduating. There was a lot of uncertainty at the time, but I knew I still wanted to play. I was going to rehab and get through it."

The 2016 Concordia football team's loss is the 2017 Concordia football team's gain. Missing from last year's offense was a certain tight end that excels at all aspects of the position. He punishes the opposition in the ground game. He can run routes and he can catch the football.

The hometown standout is back for one final semester and one last hurrah as a Bulldog. There may be question marks about who will throw the football and who will carry it, but Fitzke's return will help settle an offense that will have a different look under the controls of first-year offensive coordinator Thomas Byrd.

"It's huge to have him back," said head coach Patrick Daberkow. "He's dynamic as a receiving threat and that changes things schematically for defenses. As good as he is at catching the ball and as big of a target as he is, he's just such a good perimeter and downhill blocker. We'll have a lot of different ways that we'll use him. What's great about him is he's all about what's best for the team."

Fitzke is comparable to his former Seward High and Concordia teammate Trey Barnes in the way that he has transformed his body as a collegiate athlete. At 6-foot-4 and built like a Nebraska Cottonwood, Fitzke is perhaps the team's most physically imposing presence.

"He's lifted like crazy," Daberkow said. "He's always in the weight room. He has packed on a lot of good weight and he's done it without losing speed. It's a testament to what Todd Berner does with our guys in the weight room. Seth has really blossomed under Coach Berner."

By late last fall, Fitzke felt ready to return to the field. However, Fitzke and the coaches agreed that he would only burn his last season of eligibility of Concordia could put itself in the running for a NAIA playoff berth. Things didn't quite come together in that fashion. The year off even helped Fitzke improve his own understanding of the intricacies of college football.

"Watching the games I ended up picking up a lot more stuff than I thought I would," Fitzke said. "I focused on guys' stances and how they leaned towards the ball and what gaps they were going to. I would say the biggest advantage I have is how bad I want to play now. I really want to get back out there. I miss it a lot. Sitting there and watching a whole season is pretty rough."

Fitzke talks about wanting to be a dominant blocker first and foremost. Fitzke's run blocking prowess will surely help a ground game that will need a boost with the loss of prolific running back Bryce Collins. Not even once did Fitzke talk about catching the ball in regards to his role. He can do that, too. He has 31 catches and four touchdowns in his career.

"If you can't block, you can't play," Fitzke said. "Being a dominant blocker is what we're stressing this year. There are a lot of single blocks in our offense. You have to beat the guy across from you. The run game is where us tight ends have to be dominant."

Fitzke and receiver Jared Garcia will be a difficult tandem to handle in the passing game. Fitzke will give this year's team more of an ability to stretch defenses in the middle of the field. (An added bonus this season for Seth will be the opportunity to play with younger brother Brady, a transfer from the University of Nebraska-Kearney).

"We'll use him as a traditional tight end, we'll motion him around and we'll use him in a lot of different spots in our formations," Daberkow said. "It won't be unlike what he's done in the past. We're not trying to reinvent the wheel, but he does open up our playbook a little bit with some of the stuff that he can do."

One theme this offseason has been finishing. Finish in the weight room. Finish plays. Finish games. If all Bulldogs follow Fitzke as an example, Concordia football will be successful in 2017.

BOISE STATE ALUM READY TO TAKE COMMAND OF OFFENSE

By Jake Knabel, Director of Athletic Communications

Thomas Byrd knows a good thing when he sees it. Byrd identified Boise State University as one of those good things even before the famed Statue of Liberty play that lifted Boise State to a shocking win over Oklahoma in the 2007 Fiesta Bowl. Just three years later, Byrd would help the Broncos to another Fiesta Bowl victory after turning down scholarship offers from the likes of San Jose State and Southeast Missouri State.

"Boise was one of the first schools to offer me actually," Byrd said. "Once they won the Fiesta Bowl, everyone was freaking out. 'You're going to Boise!' I committed way before they won the Fiesta Bowl."

A four-year starting center for former head coach Chris Petersen's Boise State program, Byrd is about to tackle his first season as a collegiate offensive coordinator after two seasons as the offensive line coach at NCAA Division II New Mexico Highlands. The native of San Pablo, Calif., began installing his offense this spring with designs on boosting a unit that averaged 25.8 points per game in 2016.

Byrd liked what he saw from standouts such as receiver Jared Garcia and tight end Seth Fitzke, but his decision to accept head coach Patrick Daberkow's job offer was more about fit. Byrd wanted to be part of a program that did it the right way and one where he could feel comfortable professing his faith.

"I told myself that the next school I go to, there are going to be some things that I want," Byrd said. "One of the things I wanted was to have people around me that are like-minded and that live for Christ. There are a lot of people that say they believe in Christ, but their actions don't hold up accordingly. I wanted to be in a community where people hold each other accountable. When I showed up here, that was one thing that stood out. Everyone is nice from the custodians to the president. I knew this was a place I could come to and not be scared about my faith."

Those words are music to the ears of Daberkow, who put his staff together, including defensive coordinator Corby Osten and special teams coordinator Wes Coomes, with those sentiments in mind. Of course, the Boise State background of having played for one of college football's most successful coaches stands out as an obvious plus. But more importantly, Byrd is a spiritual and philosophical fit.

"He aligns philosophically with the rest of our staff as far as how to build men to be prepared for life after football," Daberkow said. "He also aligns philosophically with what we want to be as an offense as far as tempo and pace. He's very much in the same school of thought as I am."

Byrd excels at making good first impressions. Let's rewind back to Byrd's days as a prep at McClymonds High School in Oakland. In regards to his prospects of playing at the NCAA Division I level, Byrd's biggest drawback was his lack of size. Because he stood at 6-foot even, many of the big name programs overlooked him. That quickly changed when Byrd made a splash while up against several more highly touted recruits at a Nike combine.

"I had a really good combine and went against some good athletes," Byrd said. "Everyone was watching these d-linemen that were ranked near the top of the nation and I was beating them. Everyone was wondering who this short guy was who was beating all these top d-linemen. From there I started getting offers."

That 'short guy' snapped footballs for record setting quarterback Kellen Moore (current member of the Dallas Cowboys) and was a rock for the 2009 Boise State team that went 14-0. When you play for a program like that, you just aren't used to losing.

"We have a lot of good football players on that field," Byrd said. "We need to make sure we don't overthink things and try to put our players in situations where they can prevail. I'm impressed with the guys that we have between Jared Garcia and Seth Fitzke. As an offensive line, I think we had a pretty good spring. We obviously have a good battle at quarterback. We're just trying to figure out who's going to be the guy. It's a different offense than what they're used to, but we saw them pick up on it."

Garcia is a talent that can be adapted to most any offense. The school's all-time leader in touchdown catches has quickly grown to respect the new offensive coordinator. Garcia says the offense will be an unpredictable one for opponents.

"Coach Byrd is a coach with a vision," Garcia said. "He wants the best out of his players and is always pushing us to be better. He is a very personable man that wants you to come hang out and talk in the office. He is very up front with his expectations, which is good for us as his athletes because there is no question what he is looking for."

Byrd found what he was looking for at Boise State and then again at Concordia. The man who stashes Little Debbie cakes in his office has hopes of bringing plenty of treats to Bulldog football. But Byrd is here to do more than offer snacks to his athletes. He wants to share in his faith – and win some football games along the way.
